BUSES READY TO ROLL

No Fuel Problems for Area School Buses

KINGSTON
Ulster County school buses will hit the road Wednesday with full tanks of gas, a situation which, despite growing reports of fuel shortages, should prevail until the end of the school year next June.

School districts in Ulster County buy their gasoline through state contract and state officials say that although gasoline will be more expensive this year, it will be available in amounts equal to what was consumed last year. "They (the oil companies) will supply all the gas that they promised us at the beginning of the year," was the way a spokesman from the State Office of Standards and Purchases put it.

There are some concessions to the fuel shortage, however. Gasoline for the 1973-74 school year will be supplied in amounts equal to the last school year and will be restricted to those school districts who previously purchased gasoline under state contract.

The EXXON Oil Company will again service Zone-8 (Ulster County) with a per gallon rate of 17.05 cents as compared to 13.92 cents last year, an increase of some 22 per cent. Supplies will increase by about 10 per cent, from 12.7 million gallons last year to 14 million gallons this year.

State Education Department regulations require that school districts provide transportation for students in K-6 who live more than two miles from their school and for students in grades seven through 12 who live more than three miles from school.

Special

A Freeman survey of several school districts in the county indicated that most school districts are well within that minimum. In the Kingston School District, buses pick up grades K-3 school children who live within a mile of their school, in the city, and within a half mile outside of the city.

But, there are indications that transportation policies, for the most part, generous, are changing. The New Paltz School District announced last month that it would not pick up students on so-called "feeder routes" into developments but would require the students to walk to the nearest main road. Frank Hamilton, head of transportation in New Paltz, says that ruling only applies to about 100 high school students, none of whom have to walk more than three-tenths of a mile, but it could be an indicator of the future.

"Our best information is that it's going to be difficult getting gasoline," Hamilton said. "I'm sure we'll have no problem running our routes, but we will try to effect some economies."

Private carriers who supply bus service for several school districts, including Kingston, Saugerties and BOCES, don't see any problems. "As long as we get enough gas,"

"I don't think our suppliers (the school districts provide the gasoline) will let us down," said Richard Lezette of Lezette Express in Saugerties which services Kingston and Saugerties. "I don't see any reason why they should, as long as we don't need more gas than we did last year."

Harold Acker of Acker Bus Lines, also a Kingston-Saugerties contractor, echoes Lezette's optimism. "I don't see any problems, either," he said. "Actually, it's not our problem. We've got the equipment and we're ready to roll."

Hopes to Move Stalled Congress Program

Key Decisions for Nixon

Combined Wire Services
WASHINGTON — President Nixon, anxious to "get things moving" with Congress, lined up a busy week today including a conference with the GOP congressional leadership, a Cabinet meeting and the installation of William E. Colby as director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Colby was formally sworn in at the White House Oval Office to head the nation's top international security agency at a time when the agency has been harmed by disclosures stemming from the Watergate scandal.

Colby, who was deputy director of the agency and formerly headed the pacification program in South Vietnam during the Indochina war, was named to head the CIA May 10.

He succeeded James R. Schlesinger, who became defense secretary during the staff shakeup of key administration aides caught in the wake of the Watergate.

The White House announced that Schlesinger, Secretary of State-designate Henry A. Kissinger and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff attended the ceremony with the President.

The President returned to the White House Monday night after spending Labor Day at his Camp David, Md., mountain retreat with the First Family. Shortly before he returned to Washington, the White House announced that he would meet with his Cabinet and the congressional leadership later in the week, probably Thursday or Friday.

"The President wants to discuss ways of getting things moving" in Congress, an aide said. Nixon's legislative program has been badly stalled this year due, in large part, to the Watergate. Congress reshuffle of key administration

Wednesday with the bulk of the money bills needed to run the government still to be passed.

Also facing the President was a decision on the type of appeal he will make of an order by Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that he produce the Watergate tapes for private judicial review. The President has until Thursday to file his appeal with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in his constitutional showdown with Watergate prosecutor Archibald N. Cox. Cox wants the tapes for the federal grand jury reportedly considering indictments against some of Nixon's former White House and campaign aides in connection with Watergate and its coverup.

The President also must decide whether to veto a minimum wage bill that Congress passed before it adjourned for its recess.

Meanwhile, Congress returns from a month-long summer recess Wednesday to begin its hectic year-end legislative push and renew its battle with President Nixon over war and spending.

Between now and Christmas it hopes to put out major war powers, spending and pension protection bills and get at least House approval of the foreign trade bill.

The Senate Watergate hearings are expected to resume in two weeks. Hearings on the confirmation of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state begin Friday.

Democratic leaders' one-time goal of adjourning the 93rd Congress' first session by Oct. 15 is almost certain to be abandoned, with the battle between the President and Congress expected to contribute to the delay. Nixon has indicated he will veto a $2 minimum wage bill and measures to curb the president's war making and money impoundment powers.

Congress passed the minimum $2-an-hour wage bill before the recess, but deliberately withheld it to prevent Nixon from pocket vetoing the measure while the legislators were recessed.

The bill to curb the president's war making and money withholding powers are in the final stages of congressional approval.

Both bills have passed both the House and Senate in different forms. House-Senate conferees must work out compromises for final approval.

The Senate war powers bill would limit the president's power to commit U.S. combat troops abroad without Congress' approval to 30 days. The House bill would limit it to 120 days.

The bills on withholding money are aimed at Nixon's refusal to spend some $8 billion appropriated by Congress. Nixon asserts the spending would be inflationary.

The House bill would give Congress 60 days to veto a president's refusal to spend congressionally approved funds. The Senate bill would require the president to spend the money unless Congress voted within 60 days to approve the chief executive's decision.

The House is scheduled to vote Sept. 12 on overriding Nixon's veto of a $185-million, three-year federal aid program to improve local ambulance and other emergency services.

The Senate voted before the recess to override the veto, but the House is expected to sustain the President's action.

Watt a Weather Picture

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Daredevil surfers took advantage Monday of the high waves whipped up in advance of Tropical Storm Delia, but the Labor Day vacationers and coastal residents fled the beachfronts today as Delia bore down on the Texas Coast.

The swirling storm approached with such speed weather experts predicted it would never reach hurricane force.

Locally, more of the three H's—hot, humid and hazy—are expected today as Ulster County continues to swelter in high 90-degree heat.

Kingston City Engineer's Office reported that 105 degrees was registered in the sun Labor Day while the day's temperatures ranged from a low of 68 degrees at 6 a. m. to a high of 94 at 3 p. m. More of the same is expected today.

Storms Friday night were widespread causing power outages in various parts of the county. According to Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., smaller storms during the balance of the long holiday weekend provided limited troubles.

Delia, one of two tropical storms menacing the hemisphere, carried winds of 50 to 65 miles per hour at 12:30 a. m. today. The storm was 145 miles southeast of Galveston and moving toward a spot between Galveston and Freeport at 15 to 18 miles an hour.

The high tides sprayed over seawalls and flooded roads leading out of Sabine Pass on the Louisiana border. The city's population of 850 was evacuated Monday night.

Residents living in beachfront homes in the Freeport area 42 miles due south of Houston, were evacuated early today and the bridge across the Inter-coastal Canal connecting the beaches to the mainland was closed.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Christine churned northeastward toward an archipelago separating the Atlantic Ocean from the Caribbean. But the storm, which once packed winds of 60 miles an hour, was steadily losing strength and was reclassified today as a tropical depression.

The island of Antigua braced for a full-fledged hurricane even though Christine packed winds of only 35 miles an hour. The Antigua government opened schools and churches as refuge centers and warned residents along the coast to flee their homes. Police leaves were canceled and the 50-man Antigua defense force was mobilized.

But gusts of gale force winds and heavy thundershowers could cause local flooding. These conditions were expected to hit the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico today and tonight.

Weather spokesmen said

Christine could intensify again back to tropical storm status.

Heavy rains in Baltimore Monday provided temporary relief from the heat, but the storm also touched off a fire when lightning struck storage tanks of Continental Oil, and high winds unroofed at least six homes. However, no injuries were reported.

Temperatures continued to soar Monday in many major cities of the East and Midwest, but thunderstorms also cooled other areas.

In Chicago Monday, temperatures were in the 90s. In New York City readings climbed to 96 and the power drain created by air conditioners caused an electrical crisis in one borough.

New York City's power company, Con Edison, said 1,900 apartment residents in Queens agreed to a "voluntary blackout" and cut off all electricity in their apartments while utility repairmen tried to replace a burned out cable.

Old County Jail Vacant, First Time in Memory

By TIM SCHUSTER

KINGSTON

The old Ulster County Jail, built in 1818, is without any prisoners for the first time in memory.

Seventy-six inmates, including three women, were transferred not possible until the building to the $3 million Golden Hill is completed inside.

This segregation would have convicted criminals separated from those awaiting various aspects of the legal procedure; would separate so-called "hard core" criminals from those convicted in civil proceedings and would effectively keep youthful offenders segregated from older residents, as well as the traditional separation of men's and women's areas.

The first prisoners to enter the new facility were some of the new facility would be "of great help" not only to inmates themselves, but to security personnel dealing with inmates.

All of that space potential of the Golden Hill jail is not yet ready, however. Sheriff Martin noted that segregation of prisoners along state guidelines of the trip to new accommodations.

The old jail had long been a source of complaints from those in the corrections field because of its lack of adequate space and modern facilities.

In February, 1968, the New York State Commission on Corrections warned Ulster County that if the county jail was not closed, the Commission would close it.

In July, 1967, Assemblyman Bertram Podell, chairman of the State Joint Legislative Committee on Penal Institutions, termed the Ulster County police Friday in a narcotic Jail "a house of despair." At raid in the Highland-Newburgh area.

Sheriff Martin said that several of those arrested spent about an hour in "the wings" of the old jail before making old facility.

In December, 1972, a good report on the old jail was filed by a State Commission of Correction team that gave a clean bill of health with some minor exceptions.

A short inmate disturbance had occurred at the jail in January, 1972, with a list of demands submitted, several of them directly related to the lack of space inherent in the old building.

At that time Larry Kithcart, Ulster County Legislator from Kingston, commented, "There's no doubt the new jail will help matters . . . 75 per cent of the problems will be solved."

Golden Hill has accommodations for 188 prisoners, almost four times the number of the old jail before making old facility.

Murder Arraignment Set Tonight

NEWBURGH, Parmenter Street, Newburgh, the subject of an intense manhunt within the Hill City, surrendered to a Newburgh detective shortly before 9 p.m. on Saturday.

Carter and a 15-year old youth, arrested on Thursday, are accused of the robbery, murder of Edward Pascoe, 64, a Newburgh cab driver. Police said that Carter and the youth entered Pascoe's cab shortly after noon on Tuesday and ordered the cabbie to drive them to the nearby Balmville School. The two suspects then allegedly commandeered the cab and forced Pascoe to drive to a wooded area in Marlboro where they allegedly robbed the man of "about $60" and slashed his throat. Pascoe's taxi was later found abandoned along Route 9W.

Police arrested the teenager on Thursday morning and immediately issued a warrant for Carter's arrest. His home on Parmenter Street was staked out as BCI officers from Newburgh and Kingston and Newburgh detectives joined in the search. A member of Carter's family reportedly contacted a Newburgh detective early Saturday night. Carter came in with members of his family and surrendered to police.

He was arraigned before Justice DuMond early Sunday morning and committed to the Ulster County Jail without bail for purposes of obtaining an attorney. The investigation was under the direction of Captain K. D. O'Dell and Senior BCI Investigator Michael Lisman.

The youth is in the juvenile center at the Suffolk County Jail awaiting a decision on his status by Ulster County Family Court Judge Hugh R. Elwyn.

Drownings Are Ruled 'Accidental'

ROSENDALE, SCUBA divers recovered his body around 7:30 Sunday morning, near the Village of Rosendale.

Coroner William S. Keyser issued a verdict of accidental death due to drowning in the case of Willard Smith of 156 North Clinton Street, Poughkeepsie, whose body was recovered by sheriff's deputies at approximately 3 p.m. Sunday about two miles west of the Edenville bridge.

Solyom, a resident of The Bronx, went spear fishing around 10 p.m. Saturday and when he did not return by dawn on Sunday his wife and nephew, Jan Kecondo of Mt. Road, went looking for him. They found his spear and two fish on the bank of the creek and notified police. State Police found his body at about 7:30 a.m., theorizing that he apparently slipped off the bank of the creek and fell into the water.

Smith was fishing with his wife and step-son, Floyd Stevens and apparently entered the water to retrieve a fishing pole. Attempts to rescue him by his step-son were futile.

Inmates Free Guards At Indiana Prison

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) — Rebellious inmates at Indiana State Prison freed three guards unharmed Monday night and prison officials reported shortly afterward the two-day takeover had ended.

The inmates, who held the guards captive in three of five cellblocks at the 24-acre prison site, released the hostages after they were promised complete amnesty from any charges growing out of the two-day takeover.

Robert L. DeBard, executive assistant to Gov. Otis Bowen, said prison officials were in full control of the 1,800-man structure, and prisoners were being fed, identified and returned to the proper cells.

"The prison was secured at 9:30 p.m. EDT," DeBard said, "but the long task remains of identifying prisoners and putting them back into cellblocks."

"We have been promised complete cooperation by the inmates."

Bowen to Make Statement

DeBard said Bowen would make a statement today. A break in the stalemate came after a two-hour negotiating session inside the prison with inmates from cellblock A.

Prison Warden Russell Lash, Indiana Commissioner of Corrections Robert Heyne, and DeBard were among those attending the session.

Lash told newsmen prison officials had only two choices: "One is to break the door down to the cellhouse and go in with state police and National Guard units and have another Attica-type situation," he said.

Instead, Lash said, "We'll wait."

Shortly after the crucial negotiating session, all three guards were led out of cellblocks A, C and D. Two of them, Arthur Jaques, 54, a diabetic and Donald W. Schultz, a widower with five children, stopped to tell newsmen they were in good shape.

They Live Up to Promise

"They promised they would not hurt me and they haven't done it," Jaques said. "They've taken good care of me and brought me everything I needed. They did just like they said. They made sure I got my medicine and I feel good."

Prison officials blamed the takeover on a gang fight over a bottle of home-brewed alcohol. A group of at least 200 convicts tried to seize a security post as they returned from chapel Sunday.

But Wayne Webb, an inmate spokesman serving 20 years for robbery, said the rebellion was sparked by a number of things, including poor wages, poor medical services, and isolation procedures. In all, the prisoners issued a list of 25 demands.

"We feel that if these demands are not at least given some attention by the prisoner and correction authorities, we cannot make predictions on actions in the future," Webb said.

the crew ran the ship aground south of New Orleans at the mouth of the Mississippi River and abandoned it.

Coast Guard spokesmen said the ship contained tons of tetraethyl lead that, when burned, produced a fume that could eat human flesh. The ship also contained calcium carbide, which the Coast Guard said exploded when mixed with water.

Officials ordered the evacuation of small towns within a mile of the freighter, but the 500 residents returned to their homes late Monday when the Coast Guard said the poisonous chemical was not aboard the boat and the calcium carbide was not as explosive as they had thought.

The fire broke out Sunday and the ship's crew said they had it under control. But late Sunday the fire worsened and

Ellsberg Break-In Data Due

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A county grand jury meets here today to consider possible indictment of former White House officials in connection with a break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The panel first was to hear testimony from a few remaining witnesses before making any decision. Officials said a lengthy session could delay the handing down of any indictments until late today or early Wednesday.

Sources close to the investigation said those still facing possible indictment are former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman; former Ehrlichman aide Egil Krogh; David Young, former aide to Henry A. Kissinger; and convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy.

The Pentagon papers trial judge last spring revealed he had been notified that Liddy and Watergate coconspirator E. Howard Hunt had engineered a break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis Fielding on Sept. 3, 1971. The burglary was undertaken to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

The trial judge ruled the break-in and other White House involvement in the Ellsberg case constituted governmental misconduct since Ellsberg was under indictment at the time in connection with the release of the Pentagon papers. Judge Matt Byrne dismissed all charges against Ellsberg and Anthony Russo May 11.

Ehrlichman has said he approved covert investigative activities by a secret White House investigative unit but also has said he didn't know the unit's plans included a break-in.

Ehrlichman has identified Krogh and Young as aides put in charge of the White House "plumbers squad" assigned to fore the grand jury this summer.

Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch presented evidence and 29 witnesses to the secret grand jury in June and July, and the panel

'No Guidance' Yet On Agnew Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, vacationing in Massachusetts, returns to the Justice Department today to decide whether evidence gathered by federal prosecutors in the investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should be presented to a grand jury.

"Everything in the Agnew case is exactly as it was when Mr. Richardson left on vacation last week. There are no new decisions from our office despite what you hear," a spokesman said.

He added that he could offer "no guidance" when Richardson's decision might be made.

Agnew's office Monday branded as "absolutely false" a Newsweek magazine report that his staff had been informed that a federal grand jury in Baltimore will hear evidence this week involving Agnew in an investigation of alleged kickbacks by Maryland contractors.

The grand jury hasn't met since Aug. 23 when it returned a 39-count indictment against N. Dale Anderson, Agnew's Democratic successor as Baltimore County executive, on charges of bribery, conspiracy and extortion involving eight contractors doing business with the county.

U.S. Attorney George Beall of Maryland was believed to be ready to proceed in the alleged case against Agnew within the next few weeks, if Richardson gives the go-ahead.

Richardson has said he would decide whether the weight of the evidence and the position of the vice president under the Constitution warrant presenting the evidence, but he has given no hint when he will rule.

President Nixon expressed full confidence in Agnew's integrity at his Aug. 22 press conference and Agnew himself called the allegations "a damned lie."

recessed to consider the data.

President Nixon told a recent press conference he considered the break-in "illegal, unauthorized as far as I was concerned and completely deplorable." He also said he had decided last March, when he learned of the break-in, that the judge and jury need not be told about it because no evidence had been obtained for use against Ellsberg at the trial. The President later changed his stand, on advice of then Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst and others, and ordered that the matter be revealed to Byrne.

No Chemical On Burning Freighter

PHOENIX, La. (UPI) — Coast Guard fire-fighting crews gave up as a loss early today the burning freighter Key Largo after discovering a poisonous chemical had never been loaded.

The bulk of the freighter burned through the night. A spokesman for the Coast Guard station in New Orleans said the ship's "superstructure has melted and burned and there are breaches in the hull."

The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet remained alongside the Key Largo through the night.

The fire broke out Sunday and the ship's crew said they had it under control. But late Sunday the fire worsened and

Town, Village Officials Discuss Saugerties Sewers

SAUGERTIES Officials of the Town and Village of Saugerties met recently in the second of a series of contract negotiation meetings involving the village and the Barclay Heights Sewer District.

Vernon Benjamin, mayor of the village, offered a contract for study by both groups that was originally prepared by the village attorney in 1971. A formula and amount of money to be paid by the sewer district to the village was discussed but unresolved and the town agreed to adopt a resolution whereby the village will be designated as physical agent for eligible state and federal funds.

The village priority number 41 prevents the possibility of any aid for the state fiscal year ending in 1974, since only 29 projects will be funded in the current state allocation of monies. Although the village is under state mandate to construct a secondary sewage treatment facility, the state has implied that the order will not be enforced until state and federal funds are forthcoming. The next eligibility list will be released by the state in March, 1974.

It was also emphasized that in order to be eligible for aid, engineering plans must be so designed whereby the village can handle sanitary sewage not only from the Barclay Heights area, but from the entire Township of Saugerties as well.

Cesare Manfredi, senior sanitary engineer for the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, arranged for and presided at the meeting.

The village was represented by Mayor Benjamin, along with Bill Voerg, public works superintendent; Jim Gage, village clerk and trustees Jim Luther, Cal Hackett and Bob Gardner.

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel, Attorney Richard Overbagh and Councilman Henry Breitenbach represented the town. Also present were village and town engineers and Fred Wadnola, meeting again Sept. 13.

Rock Festival Ends . . . Now the Work Begins

HOLLAND, Vt. (AP)—The last of the participants in a weekend rock festival left Holland, Vt., Monday, but the townspeople and the promoters saw much work still ahead of them.

Town officials were to meet today with town attorney Andrew Pepin to determine how much money would be needed to repair damages. Pepin said it appeared to him that damage had been confined to the 200-acre festival site owned by Abbott, and little money would be needed from the promoters to satisfy a security bond ordered in Orleans County Court last week.

"Other than a few raids on vegetable gardens, I haven't heard of any problems," he said. "We can afford to lose a few tomatoes if that's all it's confined to."

That may have been the only good news all weekend for Worth and Abbott, who claimed they had a deficit of about $60,000. The crowd was reluctant to buy the $10 tickets and late Saturday a large-scale effort to break down the fences led to fights with Worth's security guards and a shooting incident in which at least four people were wounded.

Worth was forced to cut the music short at 4 a.m. Sunday morning, a full day ahead of schedule, when he could no longer pay the rock groups to

Sunday night, several wooden buildings were set on fire on about rock festivals in such places as Watkins Glen and Woodstock, N.Y. "We had expected a lot worse," he said.

Police said there were about 100 arrests, mostly on drug violations. The young people were arraigned in courts in Newport and St. Johnsbury, with a special session called Saturday to help process them quickly.

The shooting was still under investigation Monday. One of Worth's security guards claimed birdshot was first fired from the crowd outside the fence, hitting some of the security personnel. He said some of the guards returned the fire.

There was constant friction through the festival between the security people, many of them members of motorcycle clubs, and the crowd outside the fence.

The rock concert and its problems in northern Vermont were in sharp contrast to a second concert which took place in the state's fashionable ski resort area.

A folk festival, staged at the Sugarbush Ski Area, drew about 5,000 people to hear folk and blues music, and have a picnic in the sunshine.

Police praised the crowd, saying it was orderly and there were no arrests during the concert which lasted about eight hours.

A spokesman for the ski area said after the concert was over, he walked over the ski slope which had served as the grandstand for the event. Chan Weller said he did not find one bottle or can left littering the area. He said pleas over the loudspeaker to carry trash to a waiting garbage truck had obviously worked.

Weller would not say definitely if the ski area would be willing to hold another such show on its property, but he also would not rule it out.

Final Rail Union Gives In

OTTAWA (UPI) — The only railway union defying the Canadian government's emergency back-to-work law gave in and ordered its workers to return to their jobs today—but union leaders said their members were "bitter" about it.

However, some factions of the hold out union in western Canada vowed to defy not only the government order but the union leadership as well and remain off the job.

Most trains were running normally over much of Canada, but major lines said restoration of full coast-to-coast passenger service would be delayed at least until the end of the week.

The nine-day strike of "nonoperating" railway workers—that is, clerks, ticket sellers and other employees who do not actually run the trains—ended for most of the workers during the weekend with an emergency order decreed by Parliament.

But the 18,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers union defied the government order until voting Monday to go back to work. Union President Donald N. Secord said his members were "frustrated and bitter."

A Canadian National Railways (CNR) spokesman said, "We now have trains running in every province of the country."

Both the CNR and the Canadian Pacific Railways railways reported service was normal in eastern Canada from Quebec to the Atlantic coastline.

But in Ontario west of Toronto and in western Canada, service was intermittent as CNR spokesmen said some rail union members in scattered areas defied their union leadership. In New Westminster, B.C., 1,000 members of the nonoperating unions voted Monday to stay on strike until a full new contract had been negotiated.

A work in the prairie provinces could affect Canada's wheat sales abroad.

Auto Tragedy Mars Show Of the Air Thunderbirds

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Joseph A. Chaney, 22, of Cleveland, the driver of a car which hurtled off a freeway and killed five spectators at an air show nearby, was ordered to appear in court today, although no formal charges have been filed.

Police said Chaney's car was speeding when it hit the rear of a smaller car, broke a utility pole and plowed into the spectators Sunday. Besides the fatalities, two other persons, both children, were injured.

Authorities have held Chaney in jail since the accident while deciding what specific charges to file.

The victims of the crash were standing on a patch of grass watching the Air Force Thunderbirds flying team at the nearby Burke Lakefront Airport. "I was just about to go across the drive and tell people to get off the grass," said Frazier Spates, an auxiliary policeman. "Then I saw a pole flying. I went to one fellow. He was already dead. I saw one boy was dead. And I went to another fellow. All he said was, 'Oh Lord, save me.'"

The car flipped over three times and sheared a direction standard before partially breaking apart and coming to rest on its top, witnesses said.

Firemen had to cut Chaney out of the wreckage while police covered the bodies with sheets. Chaney suffered minor injuries and was treated at a hospital and then jailed.

The accident killed Gery Williams, 40, his son, Paul, 7, of Eastlake, Ohio, and Camillo J. Resch, 70, his son, John Resch, 36, and his grandson, Terry Resch, 11, all of Lorain, Ohio.

Two other Williams children were injured. Christopher, 9, was in critical condition at St. Vincent Charity Hospital with head and leg injuries. His sister, Karen, 5, was treated released.

John Resch's French poodle, Pierrette, was also struck and killed in the accident.

Waldheim Winds Up Mideast Tour

By United Press International

A gunbattle erupted in central Beirut today when three men tried to kidnap a Lebanese army officer in a taxicab. The officer was wounded and all three men were killed, the Lebanese armed forces said.

In Jordan, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim today wound up a five-nation tour conferring with Middle East leaders on the Arab-Israeli dispute and flew to Algiers for a conference of non-aligned nations.

The secretariat of Israel's governing Labor party announced in Tel Aviv a campaign platform for the October elections calling for stepped-up Jewish settlement of occupied Arab territories and rehabilitation for Palestinian refugees under Israeli control.

A Lebanese military statement issued in Beirut said today's gunbattle was sparked when a military patrol stopped a taxicab with three men inside near Beirut's coastal area.

The patrol seized a pistol from one of the men and ordered all three detained. An officer with the patrol got in the back of the cab and directed the prisoners to follow a jeep to the military court.

The military statement said the car suddenly turned into a side street at high speed, and the three tried to kidnap the officer.

The officer drew his gun and struggled with one of the men and then shot him. The officer was hit by gunfire from outside the car, the statement said, but shot the other two. All three men later died in a hospital.

In Amman, Jordan, Monday, Waldheim conferred with King Hussein on the Middle East crisis. He later visited a Palestinian camp and told refugees there, "I came to study your conditions. I will do my best to serve you."

Waldheim visited Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Jordan and Israel on the tour, saying he wanted to establish personal contacts with government leaders.

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir said the Labor party's platform for increased settlement of the occupied lands would not prevent a peace settlement with the Arabs. She said the platform was consistent with past policy of settling occupied areas without actually annexing them.

Arabs Huddle on Oil Policy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — agreement to limit production increases, which could affect the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries meet today in Kuwait to discuss a joint policy toward the United States and other supporters of Israel.

Oil industry sources say the most that can be expected is an nese allies more than it would the United States.

Although the United States is expected to import 20 per cent of its oil from the Arabs by the 1980s, at present it is dependent on them for only six per cent. Europe and Japan get 80 to 90 per cent of their oil from the Middle East and North Africa.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 4, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

HENRY, Idaho — Are the American people, wracked by warfare and shaken by scandal, on the brink of a national nervous breakdown?

A solemn Henry Kissinger, talking privately to friends, has warned of the danger. He wonders how long the citizenry can endure the dreary diet of disarray, human tragedy, interruption of vital tasks and all the other adverse effects of the crisis in confidence.

In the backroom of the Senate Watergate Committee, there have been worried whispers that the public may not be able to stand many more shocks. The Watergate horror has saturated the country with scandal until millions have begun to despair. Could this develop into a national psychosis?

On flying trips around the nation, I have watched for signs of shellshock in the people I have met. I have detected an undertone of anxiety, a sense of things gone wrong, a feeling of political betrayal.

SICK OVER WATERGATE
The antique dealer in upstate New York, the hotel operator on the Florida gold coast, the ranch wife on the Idaho-Wyoming border, the Sunday School teacher in southern California — all are sick over Watergate. Their faith in the President, their confidence in the government, their trust in the democratic processes have been jolted. But despite the general uneasiness, America is still populated by sound, sensible, stable people who will weather the crisis. Across the land, as here in this ramshackle place called Henry, Idaho, America is still the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Henry is a shabby spot on the mountain slope, a few battered and blackened shacks that rise out of the sagebrush and quickly slump back into them. Most of the activity takes place at the city hall, post office and general store, which are located in the same one-room building.

The building, ravaged by harsh weather, with a leeward tilt from the heavy snows, looks like a relic from an old cowboy movie. It even has one of those sheer fronts that went out of style when Hoot Gibson turned in his spurs.

BULLET-HOLE PROFILE
Inside, a huge, pot-bellied stove dominates the room. On the wall behind it is a battered piece of tin, with a profile of Buffalo Bill Cody in bullet holes. It took Gus Peret 210 shots to blast out the profile with his six guns back in 1925.

The sheep herders, who come here to buy canned goods and beef jerky, like to talk about the old days. They remember when the gold mine was still operating on nearby Caribou mountain. According to local legend, two badmen hijacked 400 pounds of gold. One was shot and the other couldn't lug all the loot. He stashed it away, so the story goes, and occasional adventurers still search the rugged ravines for the treasure.

The range people are quick to spot a phony. A blowhard, puffed up with his own importance, was driving down the highway with my friend, Arcola Von Almen, when, suddenly a tire went flat. "Why don't you blow it up?" suggested Arcola sweetly.

Another friend, Roland Smith, took me to Henry by boat across a lake on the Blackfoot Indian reservation. Roland was having trouble with his legs, which are badly scarred from a gasoline fire. He has a private gas tank at his home in nearby Soda Springs. Escaping fumes were ignited by a spark from the gas pump.

SHEET OF FLAME
Suddenly his wife, Arleen, was enveloped in the blazing inferno. Ignoring the sheet of flame, Roland ran to her aid. He rolled her on the ground and covered her with dirt to smother the flames, although his own legs had caught fire and were causing intense pain.

Once he had extricated his wife and himself from the fire, he roared off in his car to the hospital. He left the fire blazing, fully expecting it to consume the home he had built with loving care. But a neighbor, seeing the fire, rushed over with a fire extinguisher in time to save the house.

Such are the people who are the backbone of America. In this season of disillusion, when our national spirit is damp and bedraggled, the people can still be counted on to do the right thing.

Whether it is Roland Smith defying death to save his wife or Judge John Sirica standing up to the President, the people can handle the crisis.

FEARLESS, DEFIANT
The short, stocky Sirica, son of an Italian immigrant, has been fearless on the bench. He even defied a higher court, which ordered him to reconsider a stiff sentence against a young robber. The youth center superintendent, appearing before Sirica, pleaded: "We don't consider the punitive aspect. We're interested in the man."

"So you're not concerned really with the question of punishment?" Sirica lectured him. "Don't you consider the rights of the citizens of the District of Columbia? Don't you think that nice people have rights, too?"

Whether it's an obscure young thief or the President of the United States, Judge Sirica calls the shots as he sees them. There is something comforting, after all, about the spectacle of the leaders of the mighty Executive branch dealing in trepidation with a federal judge.

Richardson's Satrapy

By ROWLAND EVANS and
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson's politically charged decision to reopen the Kent State killings without consulting a highly skeptical White House reflects the Justice Department's sudden separation from presidential direction.

Since his appointment as Attorney General in the crisis atmosphere of April 30, Richardson has not only been independent of the White House but effectively disembodied from it. He runs his own satrapy, proclaiming decisions that often totally surprise the White House. In lesser degree, the same process is taking place in other departments.

This partly stems from deliberate decentralization policies by President Nixon's new domestic counselor, Melvin R. Laird. As such, it is a welcome, long-overdue corrective to the centralization intended by Laird's predecessor, John D. Ehrlichman, to emasculate the cabinet-level departments — leading to Watergate. But some Republicans fear runaway decentralization, particularly at Justice, reflects a dangerous turning away from domestic problems by President Nixon in the wake of Watergate.

The Justice Department is the most important showcase of this both because its activities are politically vital and because it was intimately tied to the Nixon White House until April 30. In his early years as Attorney General, John N. Mitchell was Mr. Nixon's closest political advisor. As his influence faded, an increasingly powerful Ehrlichman began poking around in Justice Department business. Mitchell's successor, Richard G. Kleindienst, fought to keep Ehrlichman from running the Justice Department, but nevertheless was constantly in touch with the White House.

Richardson has operated on his own from his first big decision: selecting Prof. Archibald Cox as special prosecutor without consulting the White House. Astounded presidential advisors correctly predicted that Cox, a Kennedy-McGovern Democrat, would not be content with prosecuting the Watergate scandal but would reopen old Nixon cans of worms, such as the ITT affair.

This pattern had become set by the time of Richardson's Aug. 8 speech pledging to take the Justice Department out of politics. Despite the political impact, Richardson did not discuss it in advance with the White House.

The operation of the Justice Department as a separate fiefdom is best shown in reopening the fatal shooting of four Kent State University students by Ohio National Guardsmen during the 1970 student disturbance. As part of a Nixon hard line, Mitchell ruled out a grand jury investigation. Kleindienst, taking over in June 1972, had no inclination to reverse his former chief.

The recommendation to reopen the case came this summer from J. Staley Pottinger, Assistant Attorney General for civil rights. Had Kleindienst still been in charge, he unquestionably would have conferred with White House senior aides. They would have advised that reopening Kent State would damage the President without furthering the national good.

These presidential lieutenants would have given the same to Richardson. But Richardson did not ask before approving Pottinger's proposal. On Aug. 2, Pottinger traveled to the White House to inform counsel Leonard Garment that a resumed Kent State investigation would be announced that day.

What makes such independence critically important is Richardson's instinctive desire — the antithesis of Mitchell — to accept proposals for Justice Department offensives from Pottinger. 33, an aggressive liberal whose appointment last February was secretly fought by conservative Republicans.

Clarke Reed, powerful Republican state chairman of Mississippi with intimate ties to the Mitchell-Kleindienst Justice Department, complained that Pottinger was too liberal as civil rights chief at the Health, Education and Welfare Department. Reed was reassured by Frederic V. Malek, the administration's personnel chief and a lieutenant of the then mighty H. R. Haldeman. "He (Pottinger) does what he's told," Malek told Reed.

Whether Pottinger would have done what the White House told him is now moot, because nobody there is telling him anything. Accordingly, his division has turned aggressive. Pottinger pushed for all-out investigation of the Collinsville, Ill., narcotics raids, resulting in indictment of 11 law officers. Reversing the old Mitchell policy of hands off the Deep South, a voting rights suit was filed in Mississippi Aug. 7. The next possible target: racial discrimination on state police forces.

With some justification, conservatives claim the Richardson-Pottinger initiatives no longer reflect policies Richard M. Nixon pledged to carry out. Some fire-eaters at the White House staff would like the President to sack Richardson, (along with Archie Cox) when — if ever — his political stock recovers enough.

But such willingness for confrontation politics with his own cabinet would be totally out of keeping with Mr. Nixon's present disengagement from sharp combat, a mood that invites Richardson and other cabinet officers to go their own way.

Freeman Editorials

War of Ideas

The Nixon-Brezhnev summit in Washington was only an interlude in the East-West war of ideas. This has been emphasized in several ways since Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader and apparent head of the ruling circle in the Soviet Union, returned to Moscow.

The big quarrel is Western demand for an unrestricted flow of people and ideas both ways. This would make people to people contacts meaningful. It would also expose Soviet citizens to democracy, and this is what the leaders of the Soviet Union fear above everything.

Just recently, Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said emphatically, "the problems of the ideological struggle cannot be a subject for inter-governmental negotiations." In other words, it shut off any possibility of giving the Soviet people a chance to travel freely outside their country or to receive freely people from the outside in their country.

The possibility that democratic ideas — really democratic, whereas the Soviet states in its constitution says it is a democratic society but has its own completely undemocratic interpretation of democracy — must not be a subject for negotiation between nations, renders any agreement for mutual co-existence meaningless, and further disarmament impossible.

Such an attitude forbids the Western powers, both European and North American, from entertaining any idea of free discussion with the Soviet people. It knocks out the main request of the West as a means of detente. What good is relaxation if it is not between people? Governments can speak of relaxation, but they are controlled and can shift at a whim. Relaxed people can find their common interests and pursue them.

So dangerous to the Communist system does the leadership regard it, that young people have been warned not to write listener letters to Voice of America. That and the imprisonment of adult dissidents shows that the Soviet has no intention of real relaxation.

End of Violence Era

The Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., is phasing out its operations and will close at the end of the school year.

John P. Spiegel, director of the center, believes the end of the era of violence is here. The center is a product of the turmoil that begun with the shooting on the Kent College campus.

Public interest over violence has diminished since 1971. "Acts of group violence do not spread and become mass phenomena as they did in the 1960's," Spiegel said. "They remain localized and contained and in that sense we are living in different times."

That does not mean that group violence is over. The newspapers refute that almost daily. The mass murders in Houston by sex fiends is the latest. Hijackers seem to have transferred their acts to other countries, but we are taking precautions across the country. Drugs are widespread. Street violence continues to take its high toll.

The end of an era of mass confrontation may be here, because we have learned how to deal with it. Confrontations are a last resort. We have found that violence is a mistake and end results can be achieved through the political process without violence.

IDAHO BACKS GEOTHERMAL TESTS — Raft River Electric, a tiny rural electric cooperative, and the Atomic Energy Commission's National Reactor Testing Station, both in Idaho, have told a Senate subcommittee their land is available for geothermal research and development. Theirs can be the start of harnessing the nation's underground heat for clean electrical energy.

U.S.-RED CHINA LIBRARY TRADE — Books, periodicals and microfilms now flow between Peking and United States libraries. But now the books also include economics, sociology, arts, music, medical and physical texts. Let us hope that students who read these texts will have the background to judge which parts are Red brain-washing and which sections are bona fide knowledge.

That Wild Vacation...Part One

Karen remained home with Charlie Chan. She wasn't electrified at the prospect of baby-sitting for a 90-pound German Shepherd who, in a thunderstorm, is transmuted from pure Jello to impure warm water. She wanted to earn extra money at the bank before returning to college.

Besides, her intended husband lives near home. She wouldn't leave him for a week on the Onassis yacht. Especially if Onassis was aboard. So Kelly and our 18-year-old Kathi flew to New Jersey to visit relatives and friends and to see New York at night.

Kathi is bright, sophisticated, beautiful and terrified. We carried enough luggage to keep a jet screaming on the ground for 15 miles. Just before takeoff, old buddy Gene Kroll phoned. "Your daughter Virginia Lee is going to meet you at Newark Airport," he said calmly. "With all eight children." He let it sink in.

"Don't worry about what they will do to the airport," he said. "The whole place will be remodeled in three weeks." The Eastern flight from Florida was 125 minutes. It was smooth. My wife read all of the "Ladies' Home Journal" and "Good Housekeeping" without recalling a word of it. On planes, she calls for Mother Cabrini to sit beside her. They talk.

At Newark, police held the Charles Frechette family back. It required two of them and a Skycap, a black man who kept looking at the ceiling and murmuring: "God, why us?" My son-in-law drives a Ford Bus. His Kelly and I managed to make the third row before we were inundated with kisses.

To my grandchildren, I am "Popop," a double backfire. The twins, Robin and Pamela, are 15 and 5 feet 7 inches tall. They are sweet and shy and have long straight brown hair. With heels they are taller than Popop. I told them how great they look without the braces on their teeth. Jim Frechette is 14, a mop of dark hair an inch taller than his sisters. Kevin, the boy with the winning smile and the long curving lashes, is 13. When the youngest, Kelly, 2, goes to bed, Kevin reads nightly-night stories to her.

Then there is Chipper, 11, a kid with whitish hair who is ready for a fight or a frolic. Christopher hangs back. He's nine and when he smiles bashfully, his nose, eyes and cheeks squinch together. Amy is seven and chubby, a socialite who plans her day by arranging luncheons and gossip sessions with her girl friends. She dresses formal to go to the bathroom.

It is, to understate it, a family. Charlie works for the Lily Tulip Company. My daughter Ginny, I learned, is now a real estate salesman for Joseph Lang Company of Holmdel, N.J. I borrowed an upstairs bedroom for a nap. My old man used to say: "A busy family. A busy family. All the men get home nights."

In bed, I dozed. I dreamed I was being kissed. I awakened to find a Great Dane named Tristan licking my nose. A small furry dog, who appeared to be pointing the hind leg of the big dog. "Buzz off!" I growled. They buzzed off.

That night we had dinner with the ninth grandchild, Elinor Grace. She used to be a chatterbox, like Gayle. She sat serenely over dinner, the pale red earrings slapping against her neck. Her grandmother, Fanny, who raised her, filled me in on school marks, behavior and the possibility of spending Christmas with us.

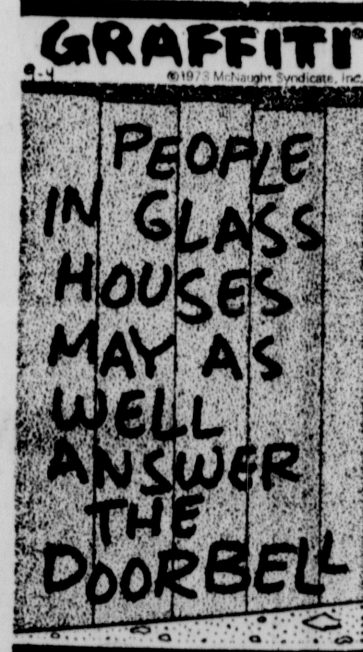

At midnight, we hit the beds as though we had spent two weeks on National Guard maneuvers. In the morning, we got a car from Kroll Motors and drove around Monmouth County. The tall deep green trees, the hills, the freshly painted homes, looked entrancing to Southern eyes. We dawled in Sea Bright, my favorite seaside village.

The thunder of the surf stroked my ears. The houses are weathered.

There are two important political considerations in Sea Bright. One is that some people want to build high-rises on the beach. Others think the money should be spent on the peach crates they call home. Then there is the problem of drinkers who urinate in the street. This is a delicate subject because the men claim they can't stand the odor of the men's rooms.

My heart was bursting with gratitude. Nothing had changed. I smiled into the rear-view mirror. "This is going to be a great vacation, Kath." At odd moments the kid becomes dull-witted. "It is!" she said. . .

Blind Ellenville Carpenter Seeks Zoning Law Variance

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE — Sam Rosnel, a 62-year-old Ellenville carpenter and furniture worker, has run afoul of Ellenville zoning in getting a small business started which he says will keep him off welfare.

Sam Rosnel is blind.

Rosnel said Wednesday, "I don't want charity or welfare.

I just want a chance to earn a living."

He boards at 25 Hickory Street in Ellenville with Mrs. Jean Knowles, and has his workshop in a small garage on the property. Unfortunately for him, the property is zoned residential R2, and carpentry, cabinet making, and furniture repair as specifically forbidden in the zone. Those are the ways order from Minnewaska, where he wants to make his living. If Rosnel can get his business going, he intends to build bird houses and feeders, flower boxes, and picnic tables in his shop, as well as do furniture repair for local hotels. He has worked at both Lake Mohonk and Lake Minnewaska repairing hotel furniture, and he is currently working on a repair his last job was. He had to give the job up when he found that "the mountain air doesn't agree with me." He got pneumonia last year and his asthma worsened. One of his hospital stays was in Kingston Hospital where the presence of his seeing eye dog, Heide, was a hospital first and got some publicity.

Not only has his upholstery work won awards, but he is an inventor as well. He has invented a jig which both rotates and revolves to allow him to easily work on any chair he is rushing or caning, a saw track with safety features for the blind, and a wood cutting machine with Braille guides. "A lot of people don't know blind people can be inventors, too," he observed.

Rosnel wants to add a small office and bathroom and shower facilities to his shop before cold weather sets in, and tap village water and sewer lines.

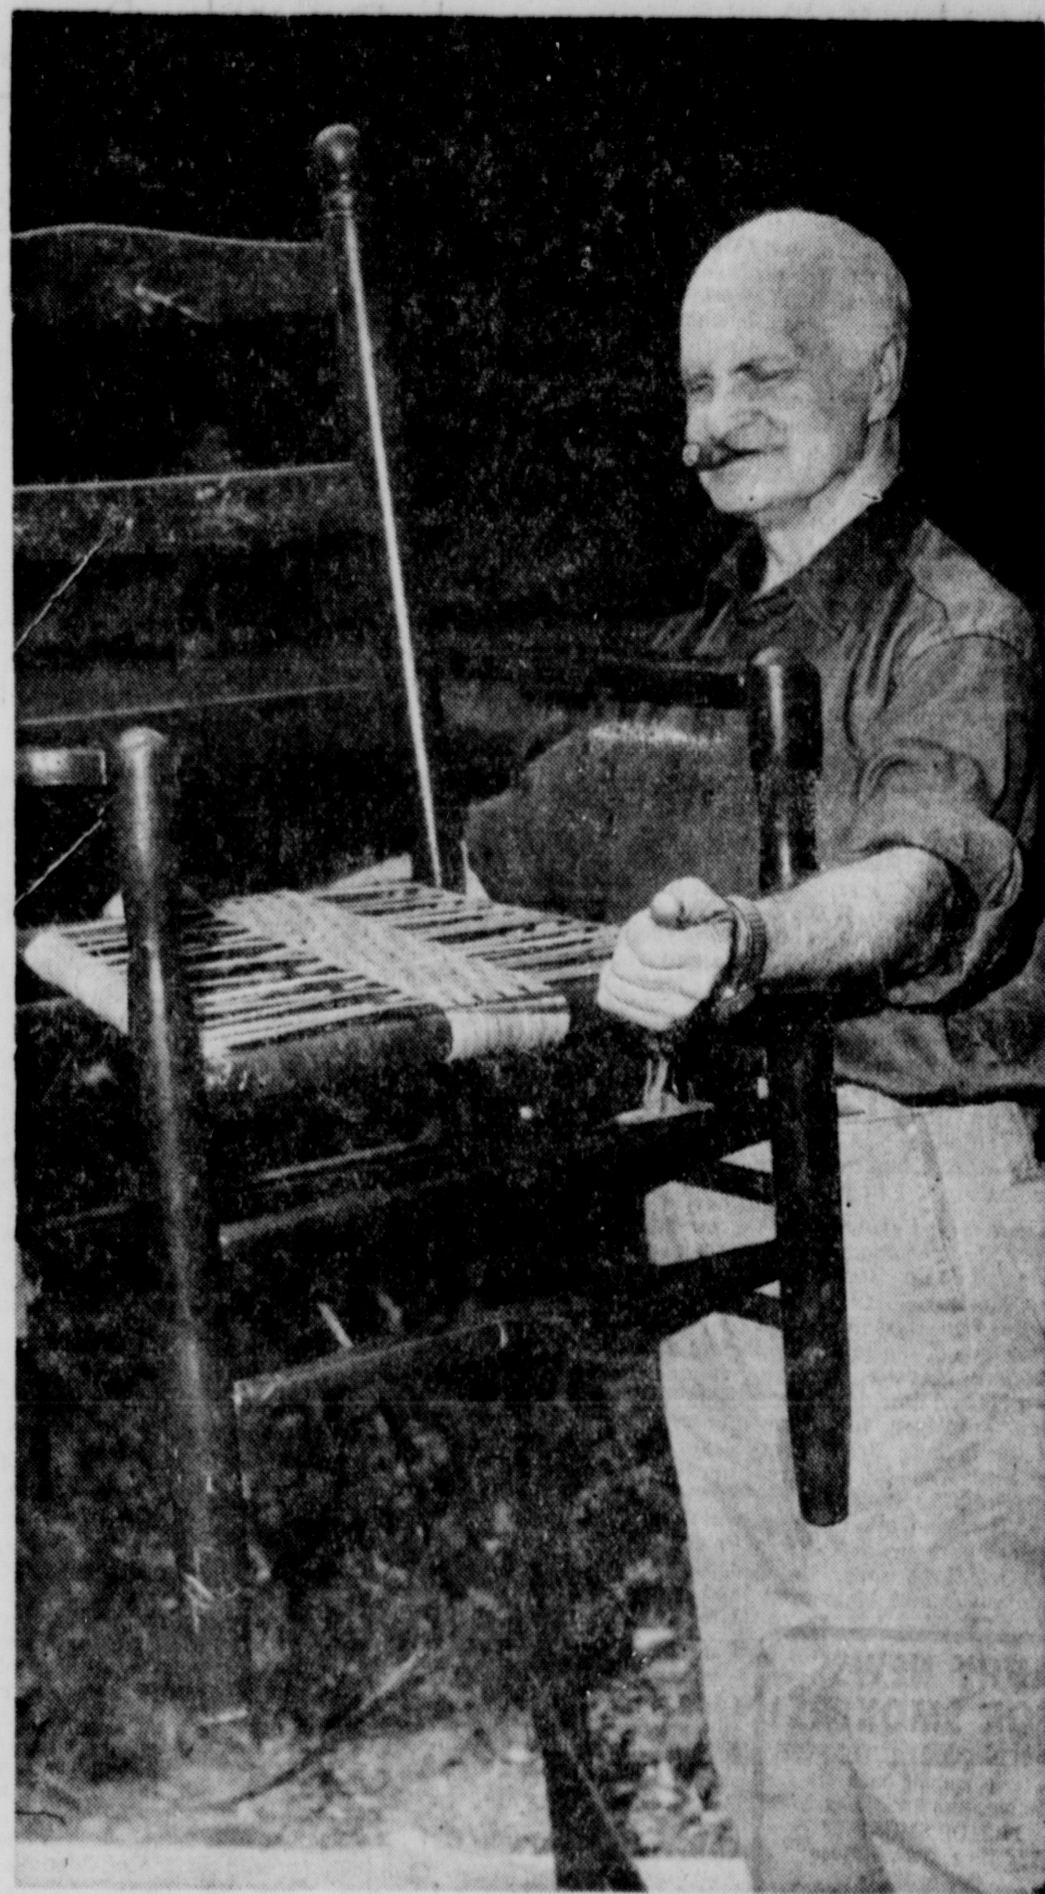

He can't do that under village zoning. Building Inspector Howard Weiss said Wednesday that the work Rosnel was already doing was "technically illegal" under present zoning, and that if he went by the letter of the law he would have to shut Rosnel down.

Weiss said he would not bother Rosnel as long as the neighbors do not complain. Apparently they will not complain, as Mrs. Knowles has already circulated a petition among them, which they signed, the petition saying that Rosnel was not an annoyance and should be allowed to continue in his business.

Rosnel said that while Weiss said he would not bother him unless someone complained, he could not get contractors to do some of the work he needs done without specific approval from the village for his business.

Weiss promised Wednesday to see Rosnel "tomorrow" to explain the problem and the procedures which might overcome it. Part of Rosnel's problem seems to be an unfamiliarity with the procedures required for getting the zoning variance he needs. He has to get that from the village zoning board of appeals. His last communication with local authorities was with Town of Wawarsing Supervisor Frank Harkin, who had to forward Rosnel's letter to Ellenville Mayor Robert Dowling since Rosnel is in village jurisdiction.

Rosnel has been legally blind from birth. He had minimal vision in his right eye, but said he lost that eye in 1967 after a job accident.

Mother
There's a little word called Mother
With a rhythm all its own
That seems to sway the heart strings
In the cradle of its tone
God fashioned it with tenderness
And understanding true
And then He called it Mother
For He named it after you.

Today's Thought
By JIM GILPATRIC
Everywhere you look, anywhere in the world, you see visible results of labor. The Great Wall of China, the imposing castles and cathedrals of Europe, today's highways, structures and products—everything, everywhere—was built by labor. Let it be forgotten, and it sometimes is, it also came about because some one put up the money to do it.
Labor by itself could not have accomplished it. Nor could capital do it. Whatever you see, wherever you see it, both labor and capital were or are involved. . . . Through the years there has been friction, irritation, dissatisfaction—even hostilities—between the two. It has always been that way and probably always will. Capital is the fruit of labor. If you destroy one, you destroy the other. Both have their rights. Uppermost, is the right to survival. For both. Neither one has the right to strangle the other. This is a fact of life. It must be recognized—and especially in the years ahead.

YOU Can Prevent Fire by Taking Precautions

Each year, thousands of homes are damaged or leveled by fire, often through negligence. In the majority of instances, fire can be prevented by conscious effort on the part of the home owner.

For instance, fire-safe storage places for such potential flammables as oily and gasoline soaked rags are a must. Tests by General Services Administration fire prevention engineers showed that flames burn through non-metal containers on the average of two to four minutes, with burning contents spilling onto the floor. In contrast, a fire in a metal container burned itself out within the confines of the can. In addition, when a close fitting cover is placed over the fire in a metal can, the blaze is quickly extinguished.

Here are some other checkpoints to reduce the danger of fire:

- Dispose of trash and rubbish regularly. Don't let it accumulate around the house.
- Keep attic, basement and closets free of old clothing, curtains, draperies, lampshades, mattresses, newspapers and old magazines.
- Store all paints, thinners and solvents in tightly closed metal cans, away from any heat source.
- Have your heating and cooking equipment checked periodically. Chimneys should be checked to be sure they are not clogged.
- Don't empty ashtrays until the contents are completely cold. Use ashtrays which are large and deep enough to keep burning cigarettes from falling out onto the floor.

Replica of Ancient Ship Will Sail Pacific Ocean

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Did er of St. Gotthard Schloss — a the Chinese reach Central castle — and his good friend America 2,000 years ago — long Kuno Knoebi, 38, an executive before Europeans arrived in of the Austrian television service Americas?

An Austrian-Danish expedition is planned to sail a Panama, Peru and Ecuador Chinese junk from Hong Kong have indicated a distinct Chinese influence on artifacts of Pacific to the Bay of Panama the Indian cultures of those regions.

The idea was generated in a conversation in Graz, Austria, have detected Chinese art between Arno Dennig, 36, own-pictures of gods and even in the original, not a single piece certain form of writing — of metal will be used in the called knot script — peculiar to the Mekong Delta.

Dennig contacted his brother-in-law, Carl Frederik Grage, 42, a Danish engineer and renowned yachtsman.

Would it be possible for a junk of the type used 2,000 years ago — during the Han dynasty — to sail across the Pacific? After two months of study, Grage decided it could be done.

In Hong Kong he got on the trail of a clay model, discovered in Canton, of a junk of the period 200 B.C. Called a tower boat, it was a warship with places in the tower for archers and spearmen.

Grage has had to make do with a photograph of the clay model, but he hopes to get permission to see the original in Canton. From the photograph he made a model of the junk and tested it in a tank he set up in his back yard.

With financing from Fritz Molden, a prominent Vienna as the sailing date. For only publisher, the building of a full-size junk will begin soon in winds favorable for a start from the Hong Kong area.

River Sediments Travel a Long Way

SARGASSO SEA. ABOARD THE RESEARCH VESSEL KNORR (AP) — Mud from North American rivers has been recovered from the ocean floor nearly 1,000 miles out by oceanographers who say wastes dumped at sea could travel the same path.

The greenish-gray mud containing continental debris was found at three sites as far as 400 miles east of Bermuda and at three others west of Bermuda.

"The silt came out of rivers like the Hudson and the ones draining the St. Lawrence Seaway," said Dr. Charles D. Hollister, marine geologist of Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. "The organic matter—the leaves, twigs and that anything that's dumped branches that come down those rivers—is basically what turns the mud green."

The sediment started its ride from the rivers on a sea-bottom current that is 100 miles wide and is known to extend from Iceland to the West Indies where it dies out, Hollister said.

But how they hitchhiked over to the far eastern side of Bermuda involves a stronger bottom current system than previously thought, Hollister added.

In effect, the sediments were sideswiped off the southbound current by the northbound bottom anticyclonic current that then moved the mud clockwise from the west side of Bermuda to the eastern side, Hollister thinks.

"The thing I didn't anticipate was that the anticyclonic bottom current was strong enough to move all that mud all the way to the other side of the Bermuda rise," he said.

UCCC Receives IBM Grant For Disadvantaged Students

STONE RIDGE
A gift of $2,000 was given to the Ulster County Community College through IBM's Neighboring College program to help provide financial support for county disadvantaged students.

The gift was presented to Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of Ulster County Community College, and Robert T. Brown, dean of administration by Dean M. Kintner, manager of Plant Services at IBM in Kingston.

Dr. Erbstein expressed his appreciation for the confidence IBM is placing in the college program to give disadvantaged students an opportunity to continue their studies.

"This will help attract new students and hopefully stimulate further support from the public," he said.

Kintner stated, "It's important for IBM and its people to have such a fine educational institution as Ulster County Community College in our midst and we are pleased to be able to contribute to their excellent program of assisting minority and disadvantaged students."

Wife of Art Forger Claims She Has No Regrets

NEW YORK (AP) — A million dollars made and lost. A husband deported to France and imprisoned. Going from Park Avenue to a studio apartment in New Jersey. Flat broke with three children to support.

"If you're talking about regrets, I have none," petite Anne-Marie Stein, wife of art forger David Stein, announces firmly. "I would do it all over again."

It was in 1964 that the 20-year-old university student, vacationing in Cannes, met Stein and gave up her law studies to follow the art dealer through Europe and eventually to the United States.

It wasn't until she had known him about four months that she discovered that many of the Picassos, Chagalls, Braques, El Grecos, Dufys and other "masterpieces" he sold to galleries and collectors were fakes he produced to order.

"He had been doing the forgeries while I was out shopping or sightseeing," recalls Mrs. Stein, who has recounted her story in a book, "Three Picassos Before Breakfast: Memoirs of an Art Forger's Wife." She had been sick for a few days and couldn't leave their hotel room.

"This time he was caught because there was no way he could paint without my seeing him," she explains, her English perfect but heavily French-accented. "He started laying out papers and colors and finally showed me a small photo of a Von Dongen and asked if I thought it would look better in watercolor or pastels."

"This is when it hit me like a brick," she continues. "I didn't recover my speech for a long time. But David is the kind of person who has a very strong will, is very stubborn. Nothing I could have said could have dissuaded him."

She admits it wasn't too hard to accept the knowledge, since she had already had what she considers shocking experiences with the ethics of dealers and artists themselves who, she says, for a price would authenticate a painting even if they knew it wasn't theirs.

"If he had been robbing banks at gunpoint that wasn't for me," she declares. "But the people we were dealing with were supposed to be knowledgeable and if they bought those paintings they got what was coming to them. And I was very young, it was a life of adventure with glamorous aspects, a lot of travel. But mainly, I wanted to stay with David. It was as simple as that."

She even started helping him, using tea to age the papers on which he painted and shredding the works that were "not good enough quality." Stein often painted at night in hotel rooms, since carrying such paintings would have been dangerous when crossing borders. Mrs. Stein explains. He once produced 40 Cocteau drawings in less than four hours.

"He never copied from existing paintings," she points out. "It would be too easily detectable and just not fun. He did his own compositions in the style of the painter. It's a little bit like method acting."

When Mrs. Stein became pregnant they decided to go legitimate and in 1965 came to New York, where Stein opened an art gallery. But their high-style living including a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce, brought money problems.

"One way to get out of financial difficulties is to paint a fake, and the whole cycle started all over," the artist's wife relates.

What became of something like a million dollars they had made?

Mrs. Stein, a deeply-tanned brunette, holds up empty hands. "It beats me," she says with an eloquent Gallic shrug. "David was a fantastic promoter and could make a lot of money but never knew how to keep it. He invested money in setting up a business in Palm Beach and it all went down the drain after his discovery."

That "discovery" came after Stein became a drug addict and to obtain money started turning out Chagalls at a phenomenal rate. Chagall himself denounced them as forgeries, and Stein spent time in prison both here and in France, where he is now living and painting "in the style of..." with his own signature.

Mrs. Stein lives with their three children in a small apartment in which hangs just one of her husband's paintings, a self-portrait in the style of Chagall.

"I'm trying to get a visa for David to get over here. As to the future," — another shrug — "I had to sell the rest, but I didn't think there would be much demand for this one so I kept it. "I'm trying to get a visa for David to get over here. As to the future," — another shrug — "I had to sell the rest, but I didn't think there would be

New Federal Program to Aid Blind or Disabled Over 65

KINGSTON Under a new Federal program, financially needy persons age 65 or older who are blind or disabled can now apply for monthly cash payments at the Kingston Social Security District Office at 57 Albany Avenue.

According to George J. Habernig, district manager, starting in January, 1974, the new Supplementary Security Income Program will take the place of the present federal-state programs of public assistance to aged, blind and disabled people with limited income and resources.

Until the federal supplementary security income payments start next January, state and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way, Habernig said.

The aim of the new program

Retired Persons Schedule Dinner

KINGSTON Members of Ulster County Chapter 975, American Association of Retired Persons, will meet for dinner on Sunday, September 9, at the Sky Top Restaurant.

AARP members will get together at the Thruway Exit 19 at 1 p.m. and proceed to Sky Top for the Dutch treat family dinner.

For further information, members are asked to call Mrs. Howard Hornbeck in Saugerties or Mrs. Joseph Lorenzo in Highland.

basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a married couple. The law further requires that generally, no person will receive a payment less than he received under the state program before the federal takeover.

Habernig pointed out that people already receiving state assistance payments under the aged, blind or disabled categories do not have to apply for payments under the new program. They will receive information later this year on how the program will affect them.

Habernig recommended that people not presently receiving public assistance, but who think they may be eligible for the new federal payments, should visit the Social Security office at 57 Albany Avenue or phone 338-7231.

Bonds Breaks LA

Bobby Bonds stole the spotlight Monday night but Hank Aaron could still have the whole show for himself before the season is over.

With a dramatic grand slam homer in the ninth inning of a nationally televised game, Bonds gave the San Francisco Giants an exciting 11-8 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who blew a seven-run lead. The loss dropped the Dodgers into a tie for first place with Cincinnati in the NL West.

Walt Alton, the veteran Dodger manager, seemed shell-shocked. "I've never seen anything like it," Alton mumbled.

While Bonds was captivating the national TV audience, Aaron entertained just 8,333 fans in San Diego by hitting the 707th and 708th homers of his career to move within six of Babe Ruth's career record of 714. The homers paced Atlanta to a 7-3 victory over San Diego. And now Aaron has a real chance of cracking the record this season.

Many TV fans missed Bonds' heroics because they turned off their sets when the Dodgers rolled to an 8-1 lead after six innings. But the Giants rallied for six runs in the seventh. Bonds scored the last run when he raced home from second on an infield hit by Tito Fuentetaja. Dave Lopes fielded but held too long before making a late throw to the plate.

That run was crucial because it cut the Dodgers' lead to one run and meant that when Gary Thomasson opened the ninth by walking, the Giants could sacrifice. Both Dave Rader and Mike Sadek bunted and the Dodgers botched up both plays with late throws to second.

That loaded the bases and Jim Brewer came in to face Bonds, who hit a 1-1 pitch for his 36th homer to wipe out the 8-7 Los Angeles lead.

"I wasn't looking to hit it out," Bonds said. "All I wanted to do was get a sacrifice fly to tie the game."

Aaron homered in consecutive times at bat in the third and fifth innings. He homered in the third off Clay Kirby and in the fifth off Vicente Romo. That enabled him to tie one of two-run pinch single in the Ruth's lesser known records of eighth inning to beat Houston. Griffey was just called up on Aug. 25 and Reds' manager Sparky Anderson beamed. "I think he'll be another Lou Brock."

Pittsburgh remained a game behind St. Louis by splitting the doubleheader with the Cards. Brock, Ted Sizemore and Bernie Carbo knocked in two runs each to give St. Louis the second game victory. In the opener, Richie Hebner's 13th inning inside-the-park homer gave the Pirates the triumph. Jerry Koons pitched a seven-hitter to hand the Mets the first game victory over the Phils. But the Mets blew a chance to pick up a game on the leaders by losing the second game as Greg Luzinski's homer highlighted a three-run fifth inning. Steve Renko, who went eight innings, picked up his 12th victory as the Expos downed Chicago to move within three games of first. Renko helped his own cause with a two-run double in the seventh. Mike Marshall got the save but gave up two runs in the ninth.

In the other games, Cincinnati beat Houston 4-3, Montreal edged Chicago 5-2, New York blanked Philadelphia 5-0 but lost the second game 6-3 and Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 5-4 in 13 innings before losing the second game 8-3.

Cincinnati moved into its first place tie with Los Angeles when Ken Griffey hit a two-out, fastball in the late innings, as evidenced by a two-out ninth inning homer by Pat Bourque.

"I seem to be losing the zip in my fastballs in the late innings these days and I think it showed in that homer. It's probably because I've pitched more innings than I ever did before."

Pressure is also mounting on the easy-going hurler with the fastest arm in the AL on his bid to reach Sandy Koufax's major league record of 382 strikeouts in a season. Ryan has racked up 326 and needs 57 more to tie Koufax with six starts remaining before the season ends.

"Koufax told me a couple of weeks ago that the last 100 strikeouts are the hardest," Ryan said. "I think that's true, because I'm feeling the pressure more and more now."

Ryan fired a three-hitter, struck out 12 batters, and established two American League strikeout records Monday night in pitching the California Angels to a 3-1 win over the A's.

Ryan, evening his record at 16-16, broke his own mark by striking out at least 10 batters in a game for the 19th time this season and bettered the record of 650 strikeouts in two seasons set by Rube Waddell in 1903-04. He now has 326 this season and 655 for the last two.

Ryan got 10 of his first 14 outs on strikeouts but seemed to lose a little on the famed Nolan Ryan says a little zip has come unglued from the Ryan Express but the Oakland A's would find that hard to believe.

Ryan fired a three-hitter, struck out 12 batters, and established two American League strikeout records Monday night in pitching the California Angels to a 3-1 win over the A's.

Ryan, evening his record at 16-16, broke his own mark by striking out at least 10 batters in a game for the 19th time this season and bettered the record of 650 strikeouts in two seasons set by Rube Waddell in 1903-04. He now has 326 this season and 655 for the last two.

Ryan got 10 of his first 14 outs on strikeouts but seemed to lose a little on the famed fastball in the late innings, as evidenced by a two-out ninth inning homer by Pat Bourque.

"I seem to be losing the zip in my fastballs in the late innings these days and I think it showed in that homer. It's probably because I've pitched more innings than I ever did before."

Pressure is also mounting on the easy-going hurler with the fastest arm in the AL on his bid to reach Sandy Koufax's major league record of 382 strikeouts in a season. Ryan has racked up 326 and needs 57 more to tie Koufax with six starts remaining before the season ends.

"Koufax told me a couple of weeks ago that the last 100 strikeouts are the hardest," Ryan said. "I think that's true, because I'm feeling the pressure more and more now."

SAUGERTIES 9-1 and 9-4, while the Fire Department outlasted Ted's Exxon, 9-8, in the only other contest.

Rosner's had to battle back in the first game with Spert's after Art Spert Jr. belted a 3-run homer in the first inning. The Pakker's built the lead to 7-3 before going down to defeat.

Tom Greco homered for Rosner's in the second game to push Spert's deeper into the basement.

In other division games, Rosner's Oasis took a pair of games from Spert's Pakkers.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI)—Eighteen years ago Billy Casper barely made travel expenses for his trip to Wethersfield Country Club. Now he practically owns the place.

Casper shot a seven-under-par 64 Monday to finish with a record 264 while winning his fourth Greater Hartford Open by one stroke over Bruce Devlin.

His performance capped a wild windup day in which seven players were tied at one point for the lead and a brief but violent thunderstorm halted play for 50 minutes and drenched the record gallery of 35,000.

Even the finish was close with Arnold Palmer, defending champion Lee Trevino, Lee Elder and Jim Wiechers tied for third place at 266, two strokes off the pace.

Casper's four-day total of 20 under par on a card of 67-65-68-64 cracked the old GHO record of 266 set in 1966 by Art Wall Jr. and tied in 1968 by Casper himself.

The faultless final round earned Casper $40,000—a far cry from the $338 he took home in his first appearance here in 1955.

"I guess that's enough to get out of town," Casper joked after it was over. "I had a good day, no mistakes. As closely as the field was bunched, all of us watched the scoreboard and knew we couldn't make any mistakes."

"I'm just glad I had a round where I didn't make any mistakes."

Devlin, who finished with a 65-67-67-66, 265, made the road difficult for Casper, putting away a pair of eagles on the back nine to go in front by a stroke.

Devlin holed out with a nine iron from 130 yards on the 10th and sank a 30-foot putt on the 14th.

But Casper stormed back with birdies on the 16th and 17th to wrap it up. He did not miss a green while picking up seven birdies in the round, five of them on the second nine.

Casper felt the rain delay actually helped his game.

"The course played just as I thought it would after the rain," he said. "I figured it would play better because you could throw the ball right at the hole and have it hold."

Casper waited out the storm in a house near the eighth tee. "Some people invited us in and made us feel right at home with drinks and sandwiches," Casper said. "Maybe we should take a break like that all the time."

It Was Positive Thinking By Timeto Thinkrich

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (UPI)—California quarterhorse breeder Frank Vessels doesn't believe in racing 2-year-old horses. His colt, Timeto Thinkrich, and the world's richest race may be altering his views.

Vessels, the owner of the luxurious Los Alamitos racetrack in Southern California, watched his young horse, Timeto Thinkrich, streak to a brilliant one-length victory in Monday's $1 million All American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

"I don't like to see 2-year-olds racing because they're not fully developed," Vessels said. "But that's where the money is so you have to train them."

Timeto Thinkrich, Vessels' "pet horse," put on a blazing display of speed midway through the 440-yard classic to capture the $330,000 first place purse.

Breaking from the No. 3 post position, Timeto Thinkrich found racing room on the inside and, with jockey John Watson providing the urging, outran Flaming Jet and Coca's Kid to the wire.

"I knew we had it won when we hit the midway point," Watson said. "We got bumped a little at that point and that might have even helped us."

The win came for Watson in his first ride ever in the rich race and marked the culmination of Vessels' 15-year dream to win the Futurity.

"We've been trying to win this thing for a long time and now that it's finally happened, I have to admit it's a hell of a late penalty fee of $15,000 for each colt to get them into the futurity trials."

Vessels has had five other entries in the All American Futurity, including the first futurity in 1959. But second place finishes by Steam To Go and Tiny Changer in the early 1960s was $424,000 in the race which took the closest he had come to just over 21 seconds to run.

Timeto Thinkrich, who wasn't supposed to be as good as his since his other entry in the stablemate, upped his career earnings to $347,000, automatically becoming one of the biggest money winners in the history of the race.

Vessels had put up a quarterhorse racing history.

Monticello Preps For Sunday Racing

Just when it seemed that nothing could top the headlines achieved last Saturday night at Monticello Raceway, when for the adjustment to Sunday

IL's American Division Won by Rochester Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rochester Pawtucket battle for the International League's American Division title went right into the stretch—the sixth inning that put Rochester on top.

In the last day of regular-season play with the score 1-1, the Red Wings put men on second and third sent Fred Frazier to the plate. He socked a triple that Red Sox centerfielder Roger Nelson lost in the sun. That moved Rochester ahead 3-1 and the Wings went on to win 6-2.

Rochester closed the season one game in front of Pawtucket. There's revenge hope for the Sox. They face the Tide-water Tides in a best-of-five series while Rochester meets National Division champion Charleston in a similar string.

The winners of the two matches meet for the Governor's Cup which last year went to Pawtucket's predecessor, the Louisville Colonels.

Monticello an all-time record crowd of 15,313 flocked to the Sullivan County oval, raceway management is quickly getting ready for the adjustment to Sunday afternoon racing which will begin on September 9. One of the most important departments which will have quite a few changes in their schedule will be that of Race Secretary Ralph Swalsky.

"It gets a little tight filling the racing programs after Labor Day," commented Swalsky from his office, "but the horsemen here are just about the most cooperative I've ever worked with. We've had to go to double draws, getting the cards for Thursday and Friday on Monday mornings and Saturday and Sunday's programs on Wednesday, but that shouldn't be any problem. I'm looking forward to some big Sunday Cards as we'll be the only action in the area and with the entertainment that Mr. Greenberg (track President Leon Greenberg) has contracted, it will be quite a day for the family."

Swalsky didn't have any problem getting a full card for Tuesday night's action at Monticello, and plenty of eyes will be focused on John Gilmour every time he heads postward. The 34-year-old Ontario, Canada, native is slated for four drives on the card, and he is only 11 wins away from becoming the second man ever to record 100 victories for the season at the Mighty "M". Jim Grundy, the 1973 driving champ and the logical repeater this year, has already notched 122 victories for the meeting.

Gene's Miss, sweeping from all the way back at the head of the stretch, came on to win by a neck in Monticello's Raceway's Labor Day night feature, edging longshot Mister Hall A and Choice Autumn's Vale in 2:07. With John Patterson Jr. in the sulky, Gene's Miss returned $19.40, $7.40, $4.40.

Over 5,000 fans were on hand for the second half of the holiday doubleheader marking the end of the summer resort season in the Catskill Mountains. But, by no means the end of the Monticello season which continues through Sunday, Oct. 21.

The Monday night Daily Double combination of 6-1 returned $23.60. Adoranda won the first with Claude Paradis at the reins, paying $10.60. Favored Buckner Hill with John Patterson Jr. getting up in the nick of time, took the second to pay $4.20.

Monticello will be racing to night, but it will be the final night of Tuesday's action, with the Mighty M opening Sunday afternoons instead. The plant will be darkened on Tuesdays throughout the autumn season.

Stratton Acquired

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers have acquired linebacker Mike Stratton, a 12-year veteran, from the Buffalo Bills for an undisclosed future draft choice.

The Chargers also deactivated linebacker Ray White and placed him on the injury list because of a pinched nerve in his neck.

VICTORY KISS — Cale Yarborough gets a victory kiss from Royette Tarry of Baltimore after winning the Southern 500 stock car race at Darlington, S. C. Sunday. Yarborough led most of the race which finished under the caution flag. (UPI)

Cale Yarborough Got Monkey Off His Back

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Cale Yarborough won the Labor Day Southern 500 mile stock car race, and got the monkey off his back.

David Pearson remains the bridle of the storied race at Darlington Raceway, but can't win. The winner's speed for the race was 134.03 miles per hour.

Yarborough was paid $21,165 from the $138,000 purse, but Pearson's runnerup money of $10,605 boosted his career winnings to $1,005,895. He is only the fifth driver of record to clear the mark, the others being A. J. Foyt, Al Unser and Richard Petty.

The winner's speed for the race was 134.03 miles per hour. Yarborough said after he and the 35-year-old Pearson staged a thriller in the 24th running of America's oldest event for stock sedans. And a near-record-sized, sun-scorched crowd of 70,000 loved it.

Yarborough, a gentleman farmer-politician from Timmonsville, only 10 miles from the track, brought his Chevrolet home about eight seconds ahead of Pearson's Mercury in a torrid duel as the sport has seen this year.

It was Yarborough's first major triumph in a stock car in three years, and it was Pearson's fifth second place finish in the Labor Day affair since 1960.

In other races, Brian Redman won the Formula 500 championship at Pocono International Raceway Monday by a third-place finish gave Jody Scheckter of South Africa the Formula 5000 series title. On Sunday, Wally Dallenbach won the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway. Jack McCoy won a 125-mile event in Monroe, Wash., marred by the death of Samuel "Pat" Pattison, 42, who was hit by a car that veered out of control and plowed into the infield.

WE SELL YOU GOOD TIRES, AND THEN TAKE CARE OF THEM.

NO-COST BALANCING. We don't understand why a tire store would sell you a tire and then charge you to make it work right on your car. So, as a participating Sunoco dealer, we balance every tire we sell. No charge.

CONTINUOUS CHECK. When you buy a set of our tires, we have a chance to look at them from time to time. If we see some unusual wear that may be caused by poor alignment, improper balance, or if we see an imperfection, we are going to tell you about it and recommend what should be done to correct it. After all, we want you to get your money's worth out of those tires.

BACKED BY TWO COMPANIES. We sell more Kelly-Springfield tires than anyone else. When you buy tires from a Sunoco dealer, you're backed by the dealer himself, by Sunoco and by Kelly-Springfield. If there's something wrong with the tire you bought from us, and we don't make it right, you've got two companies to look to. Not just one.

CREDIT TERMS. When you buy tires from us, you can use your Sunoco credit card. In fact, you can get extended payment terms so that you don't have to pay all at once.

Kelly-Springfield tires are sold by participating independent service station dealers displaying the Sunoco sign. Tire prices and services offered, including balancing of tires, may vary. Tire guarantee terms are disclosed in writing at the time of purchase.

Gray Elected to Second Term As Marine Corps League Head

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

Gilbert E. Gray of Kingston was elected to a second term as commandant of the Marine Corps League at the 50th annual MCL Convention in Miami Beach.

Gray, the owner of Doctor's Ambulance Service and G. G's Taxi of Kingston, was reelected by acclamation.

Other national officers elected were Richard L. O'Brien of Virginia, senior vice commandant; Edward Schramm of New Jersey, judge advocate; Edward J. Banke of New York, national trustee-at-large; Chriss Cunningham of Albany, chaplain; and Frank Starr of Virginia, national adjutant-paymaster.

As the League's 34th national commandant, Gray acquired the reputation of being "the man on the move," traveling to every corner of the United States as well as to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and Bellau Woods, France. In each of these he placed plaques for the League's 50th anniversary.

Gray said he plans to continue this schedule in his second year. "It is the only way I know to really be in contact with the rank and file League who really comprise the basic structure of our organization," he said.

Gray is married to the former Bernice Irwin and they reside with their six children at 339 Hasbrouck Avenue.

BACK FROM WHITE WATER—Steve Powers, (L) and Mike Dunnigan, are shown as they arrived back in Kingston from a 90-mile trip in aluminum canoes down the Delaware River from Hancock to Port Jervis recently. Undaunted by the tough journey that resulted in sunburn, sore muscles and a boat with bugs and maggots, the two are already planning another white water trip for next year. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Student Should Cool It With Her Professor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune. N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year I enrolled in a night class and found myself very much attracted to my professor. He's in his middle thirties, and I'm 22. I purposely got a ride to class one night and asked him if he would give me a ride home. He did, and we sat in front of my house talking for over an hour, and I know he enjoyed it as much as I did.

He didn't ask to see me after that, but I could tell he was very conscious of me. Thinking he needed a bit more encouragement, I wrote him a note telling him I wasn't looking for an affair, just a friendship. He didn't acknowledge the note so I dropped by his office to ask if he had received it. He said he had, but he didn't want to get "involved."

I asked him what he thought of me, and he said:

new "mini" track lights by progress LIGHTING

Want inconspicuous lighting fixtures? Want lights you can move and aim at different locations? Then you want new Progress "Mini" Track Lights. Mount the electrified track where you want it. Wire it in or plug it in. Use 3, 4 or more lights on a track. Great lighting for every room—for work or play—for your art "treasures." Come see it!

"I think you are 'nice,' but it's not a good idea for us to see each other outside of school."

Abby, I can't forget him. I think he could care for me if he would let himself. Why is he fighting me? I'm not the kind of girl who usually throws herself at men, but I would give anything if I could win him over.

How can I get my foot in the door?

DIGS HIM
DEAR DIGS: First get your foot out of your mouth. I fear you've already turned him off with your aggressiveness. Cool it. If there is to be any next move, he will have to make it. But don't be disappointed if he doesn't.

DEAR ABBY: Our next door neighbors are lovely people. They are both in their early sixties. Well, "Mister" loves to smoke cigars, and "Mrs." will not let him smoke cigars in the house, so he goes out in the backyard and smokes up a blue storm every evening after supper. Their backyard joins ours.

We have a picnic table in our backyard, and enjoy eating outside, but the fumes from his cigar drift to our dining area and spoil my appetite. (We live in Iowa, and there's not much of a breeze here.)

They are such nice neighbors, always giving us flowers and vegetables from their garden. Should we say anything? Or just eat indoors? I can't take that cigar smoke.

DEAR NEIGHBORS: Try diverting the cigar pollution with an electric fan. I am no smoke-lover, but any man who enjoys his cigar so much he lets his wife chase him out of the house to smoke it needs sympathy and a little compassion.

DEAR ABBY: For those who have private swimming pools and do not mind sharing them with neighbors and friends, but occasionally want their privacy, the "flag" signal is the best idea yet.

Erect a flag pole where neighbors can see it. When the flag is UP, they are welcome to swim; when it is DOWN, no guests are welcome. Neighbors can see for themselves, and thus there is no embarrassment for the pool owners.

Further advice to pool owners: 1. At the outset, ask guests to please bring their own towels. 2. Do not overdo the hospitality bit by providing soft drinks and refreshments or you will soon be bankrupt. 3. Be firm in insisting that NO children swim without an adult who can double as a lifeguard unless YOU yourself want to assume the responsibility.

DEAR POOL OWNERS: Cool advice. Thanks for sharing.

Elizabeth Post: Doing the Right Thing

Soup and salad (or, soup and sandwich) is perfect for hot summer nights, when the mere thought of cooking or eating a heavy meal leaves you limp. Today's quiz is concerned mainly with the soup—how to serve it, how to eat it. . . . Perhaps it will suggest some ways you can surprise your family when the temperature hits 90 degrees.

Q. May thick cold soup be served in soup plates, or should it be served in cups?

A. Just as hot soup cools quickly in a plate (desirable in the case of hot soup) so cold soup warms quickly (not desirable) because the plate is shallow. Therefore, thick cold soups are best served in a two-handle cup, a bowl, or a mug. Pottery, heavy china or stoneware, and insulated plastic keep the soup cold and fresh better than delicate china or paper cups, although the china is fine if the soup is eaten as soon as it is served.

Q. When chowder is served in cups at a picnic, how does one get the delicious bits of potato and clam from the bottom?

A. Whoever is serving the chowder should provide some sort of spoon for this purpose. If not, the only remedy is to tip the cup way up when the liquid is gone, and hope the best part will slide into your mouth quickly.

Q. Is a luncheon of cold soup and salad with rolls (and perhaps ice cream for dessert) substantial enough to serve a mixed group?

A. Yes, if your soup and salad are hearty. My family's (four men and boys included) favorite summer soups are watercress soup, borscht, peanut soup, and gazpacho. Chef's salad is filling enough for any appetite, as is potato salad surrounded by marinated vegetables or mixed bean salad.

Q. When chowder or cold soup is served in a big bowl without handles, it is permissible to pick up the bowl and drink the soup?

A. No. Large bowls that have no handles should not be picked up. The soup must be eaten with a spoon. You may pick up very small handleless cups if it can be done with one hand.

Q. How does one serve soup from a thermos so everyone gets some of the solids that settle at the bottom?

A. Line up the cups or bowls and pour a little liquid into each one. Then go around again, meting out the solids from the bottom.

'Business Is Better Than Ever'...

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The double-deck curb-service lot man who calls himself "the granddaddy of the fast-food business" says business is better than ever despite rising prices and the specter of food shortages.

"I run this place like Paderewski plays the piano," grinned Frank Gordy, millionaire owner of The Varsity, a 2½-acre landmark near the Georgia Tech campus. Gordy calls it the world's largest drive-in restaurant.

Launched the year after the 1920s stock market crash on an investment of $1,800, the Varsity sells 22,000 hamburgers on a good day and — Gordy noted with typical hyperbole — "more French-fried onion rings than any three restaurants in the country."

An estimated 20,000 customers step up to the restaurant's two 150-foot chrome sandwich counters or drive through the able lots in town, perched over an expressway interchange in downtown Atlanta.

A colorful tradition of wisecracking curbhops — the most famous was comedian Nipsey Russell — helps foster the drive-in's success even though curb service is no longer its mainstay.

Generations of customers reasons for his success: speed, hot dogs with mustard, two yellow dogs. A hamburger all the way? My boys say, "Run it through the garden."

Gordy, who now has two restaurants near the University of Georgia in Athens and another in suburban Atlanta, lists two reasons for his success: speed and volume.

"I lost $300 a day for a month on onions a little while back," he said, "but I wasn't about to raise prices. My customers wouldn't stand for it. I took the loss."

Helping him maintain the attitude is the fact that profits keep climbing, customers keep increasing, automation has reduced employees by 100 in the past 10 years — and the drive-in sits on one of the most valuable

State Law Is Explained

PORT EWEN Esopus town attorney Norman Kellar told a special meeting of the town board recently that New York State law apparently prohibits a town constable from holding elective office, or holding an office that directly concerns a political party.

Esopus residents had questioned the practice. The law could conceivably affect two town residents: constable Clarence Bowman, who is a party committeeman and Thomas Johnson, a special park patrolman who is running on the Republican ticket for the Esopus Town Board.

Kellar told the special meeting that the New York State Department of Audit and Control advised him that it would be "incompatible" for a town constable to hold an elective town office, and that under Section 426 of the Elections Law, it is illegal for a constable to serve as committeeman for a political party. It was hinted at Thursday's meeting, however, that a federal court recently overturned that ruling. That has not been confirmed, however.

Saugerties Tax Rates

The Board of Education has announced 1973-74 school tax rates for the three towns comprising the Saugerties Central School District. The rates, with 1972-73 rates in parentheses, are as follows: Saugerties, $139.410 ($136.704); Woodstock, $36.055 ($36.475);

Ulster, $174.265 ($168.292). Dr. Dexter O. Arnold said the tax rates are based on the valuations made by the respective town assessors. Of the total amount raised for school taxes in the district, slightly more than 93 per cent comes from the Town of Saugerties.

Poppel Running In Wawarsing

WAWARSING
Herbert Poppel of the Town of Wawarsing has announced his candidacy for supervisor of the town saying "Our township is 25 years behind the time. We are not doing things for the people. I think I can move the town forward."

Poppel, a resident of Kerhonkson, lost a supervisory race two years ago to Frank Harkin by 70 votes. Harkin has since announced his retirement.

Poppel now faces Democratic candidate Frank Sahler and Republican candidate Thomas Tompson of Napanoch. Poppel reports that the Democrats previously offered him a councilman nomination "ignoring his desire to run for supervisor again."

He predicts that the three-way race will be interesting because "local politics always deals in personalities and very few people vote the solid line as in past generations."

HERBERT POPPEL

Miller Cites Disenchantment

SAUGERTIES
Paul Miller, Democratic candidate for supervisor in the Town of Saugerties, said that getting out and talking with people in different sections of the town convinced him that he should accept the nomination.

"I was surprised at how extensive the disenchantment with the present (A. Michael Schovel) supervisor is," Miller said. "After all, he works hard at being liked, and unfortunately that sometimes is all that's needed to win an election."

"He's just not doing the job the way it should be done," Miller said. "As a consequence, the town is hurting. An increasing number of people have become aware of this and are genuinely alarmed."

"I would suspect, though, that he will echo the sentiments of the present Republican-dominated town board, and for that reason I would urge all concerned Saugerties voters to support not only my own candidacy, but that of Charles Ollinger and Trudy Lee for the town board."

Paltz Composer At Festival

NEW PALTZ
Gundaris Pone, the composer, has returned to his home in New Paltz after conducting the world premiere of one of his works at a music festival in West Germany.

Dr. Pone, who is professor of music at the State University College at New Paltz, also discussed musical matters with the Ministry of Culture in the Soviet Union. The discussions resulted in the ministry's purchase of exclusive performance rights to another work.

At the music festival in Cologne, Dr. Pone conducted his new composition "De Mundo Magistri Ioanni" and the first performances of works by three other composers. The orchestra was the Avon Chamber Orchestra of London, which he commended for its performances.

The music was inspired by the paintings of medieval Riga, Dr. Pone's home city, by the young Soviet artist Janis Anmanis. The premiere was very well received in the international music press.

TESTING THE CARDIOGRAM

New Diagnostic Service At Northern Dutchess

RHINEBECK
A new diagnostic tool, now in use at Northern Dutchess Hospital, is expected to be of great assistance in helping a physician to evaluate his patient's symptoms.

Shortness of breath — palpitations — chest pain . . . Symptoms of a heart attack? Or just indigestion? Or nerves? The Dynamic Card i o g r a m should help determine which, according to Dr. Alan B. Mikler, Rhinebeck physician, who is a member of the Hospital's active medical staff.

Dr. Mikler explained that the device is a portable unit worn by the patient which records his heart beats on a six-hour, a 13-hour, or a 24-hour tape.

It is a complete electrocardiogram unit inside a small case about the size of a pocket radio, worn about the waist, with three lead wires taped to the chest to record heart movements as the wearer goes about his daily routine.

The patient is asked to chart his activities at each hour of the day he wears the unit so activities may be checked against the monitored heartbeat rate. He also records any symptoms he experiences such as shortness of breath or chest pains.

If acute symptoms appear, he will naturally call his physician immediately or come to the hospital's emergency room.

At the present time it is necessary to send recorded tapes in Clinical Data Services in Boston where a computer prints an electrocardiogram sheet to be mailed back. At some future date is hoped that Northern Dutchess will own its own computer.

A suspected cardiac problem is not the only use the Dynamic Card i o g r a m offers. It is helpful in assessing "anti-arrhythmic" therapy by showing whether the patient is responding favorably to medication and whether smaller or larger amounts are needed.

Through the unit the physician can also evaluate how much post-heart attack exercise the patient is capable of handling; when he should be ambulatory; and how soon he should resume normal activities. The unit is also effective in checking pacemaker function, since it can indicate battery malfunction and proper working condition.

Northern Dutchess Hospital now has portable unit, with more expected, and will make the units available to area physicians upon request.

Interested persons may ask their physicians to contact Mrs. June Fallon, EKG Technician at the hospital. Dr. Mikler will instruct physicians in its use.

Three Copenhagen Hotels May Be Ordered Closed

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — day's blaze that killed 35 Copenhagen's fire chief said today three "dangerous" hotels described as a "fire trap." Twenty Americans, 11 tourists from other countries and four Danes perished in a fire that gutted the Hotel Hafnia, one of Copenhagen's plushiest.

"Three other hotels must be considered dangerous, and a fire there could easily develop into a similar catastrophe," said Fire Chief Jan Amnitsboell.

"We have known that for a long time, and the owners have received several reminders to do something for the safety of their guests. It is possible we will have to recommend to city authorities that the three hotels be closed," Amnitsboell said. He did not name the hotels.

Police Monday said they had positively identified eight of the dead Americans and that they knew the names of the remaining 12, whose relatives had been notified of their deaths.

"But we haven't yet been able to determine exactly who is who," a police spokesman said.

He said many of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and that he could not say when coroners would be able to identify them positively.

Bengt Willy Nielsen, 33, a Danish prison inmate suspected of arson in connection with the fire was in custody pending investigation, police said.

He was arrested Sunday when two unidentified American couples told police he acted "suspiciously" after the fire.

"He says he had nothing to do with the fire," police sources said.

Skylab Space Explorers Photograph Storm Delia

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 space explorers calmly continued photographing Earth's natural resources today, but flight controllers on the ground had to brace themselves in case Tropical Storm Delia blew through the Space Center.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma were taking more pictures of Delia with one sweep of their powerful cameras. During another pass they were to study resources in Argentina, Paraguay, Brazil, the Spanish Sahara and Italy.

The space fliers beamed back a live television show of Delia Monday as it moved toward the Texas-Louisiana coast, reporting the storm's eye was apparently obscured from their view by high clouds.

Flight Director Donald R. Puddy said a team of 26 flight officials had been ready to fly to the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., if the capability of communicating Center in Greenbelt, Md., if the raging storm knocked out the capability of communicating with the spaceship from the Johnson Space Center.

The plan was scrubbed because officials late Monday decided the situation was not serious enough to warrant the action.

The flight director praised Bean, Garriott and Lousma for their "excellent spirit" as they plugged away at scientific work, and especially for their response to and watching an unexpectedly active sun.

Police Monday said they had positively identified eight of the dead Americans and that they knew the names of the remaining 12, whose relatives had been notified of their deaths.

"But we haven't yet been able to determine exactly who is who," a police spokesman said.

He said many of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and that he could not say when coroners would be able to identify them positively.

Bengt Willy Nielsen, 33, a Danish prison inmate suspected of arson in connection with the fire was in custody pending investigation, police said.

He was arrested Sunday when two unidentified American couples told police he acted "suspiciously" after the fire.

"He says he had nothing to do with the fire," police sources said.

Last Chance For A

7.35% Annual Yield on 7%

(4 Year Savings Certificate Accounts... Minimum Deposit $1,000)

The bank that's first with the most for miles around is now almost the only savings institution presently offering the most on savings.

Saugerties Savings Bank is now one of the few savings institutions in the area where your money can earn as much as 7.35% when you open a new Savings Certificate Account. This is a limited offer, so act quickly. Open your 4 year 7.00% Savings Certificate now, with a deposit of $1,000 or more. Then hold both the principal and interest until maturity. Your guaranteed effective annual yield will be 7.35%.

To be sure that you don't miss out entirely on the maximum yield which is currently available, stop in now.

You must hurry! Because of FDIC restrictions, this offer may be withdrawn without notice.

FDIC regulations permit withdrawals from Time Savings Accounts before maturity provided rate of interest on amount withdrawn is reduced to passbook rate and three months interest is forfeited.

$ Fluctuates, Gold Steady

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar fluctuated on European money markets today and the price of gold held steady.

The dollar opened slightly higher in Brussels and Paris, began the day at $2.4575 to the pound, unchanged in value in London, but opened fractionally lower in Germany and Holland.

It closed moderately higher in Tokyo, at 265.47 to the dollar.

Gold on the big London bullion market was unchanged at $104.50.

Few European dealers found any major outside influence at work on the dollar's rate of exchange.

The dollar's opening quotation in Frankfurt today was 2.4540 marks, slightly under Monday's close of 2.4550 marks.

In Amsterdam the dollar dipped marginally to 2.6760 guilders. In Milan it opened at 565.25 lire, another slight dip from Monday.

But in Zurich the U.S. currency began at 3.0375 Swiss francs, up from 3.0287.

HIZZONER IS READY—Mayor Francis A. Koenig is prepared for the second annual Oktoberfest scheduled for September 29 and 30 at the Armory on Manor Avenue. He is shown getting his tickets for the two-day festival from Fred Schreiner (C) Oktoberfest chairman, as Clemens Haneke, (R) publicity chairman, displays an Oktoberfest poster. All three men are holding Oktoberfest beer mugs designed specially for this year's fun and frolic festival. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

2nd Oktoberfest Set Sept. 29-30 at Armory

KINGSTON Oompah-oompah music, with beer, wine, food and dancing, will be the order of the day at the second annual Oktoberfest in Kingston.

The Kingston Armory will be filled with men in lederhosen, fraus and frauleins in dirndls, a German brass-musik band, lots of food and beer, and entertainment galore.

Because of the record crowd last year, this year's event will run for two days, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 29 and 30. Mayor Francis A. Koenig of Kingston will deliver the opening address Saturday evening.

The Ulster County Oktoberfest Committee has put together a fun-filled program for everyone. Booths lining the walls of the Armory will offer German cakes, clothes, beer mugs, cars, bikes, beer, wurst, wine, cheese, and imported items. Available this year is a newly designed beer mug especially made with the Oktoberfest insignia.

The Kingston Mannerchor and Damenchor will sing to help set the festive mood and German folk dancing will be performed by the Tillsoner Vagebund Schupplattlers in costume. A German band will play in the beer hall and "Ingo and the Continentals" will play for the wine and cheese lovers in the Weinstube, an exclusive for this year's affair that is expected to draw a capacity crowd.

Advanced sale admissions are available at reduced prices and tickets may be purchased at the door. Children under 12 are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Average Size of Welfare Families Smaller

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Social services officials have detected a significant downward trend in the average size of welfare families in New York State.

In the past four years alone, they say, the average family in the Aid to Dependent Children category, the largest cash assistance classification, has dropped from 3.80 members to 3.48.

"And we expect this phenomenon to continue," said one state Social Services Department official.

The state experts generally credit the growing availability of birth-control counseling for women on welfare.

"Up until two years ago, by regulation a public social welfare worker couldn't even discuss birth control with an individual except if the individual asked for counseling," said Gabriel T. Russo, deputy commissioner for income maintenance in the state Social Services Department.

"Now family counseling can be discussed right at the entrance level and the individual can be directed to the clinic or institution of her choice," he said.

And only in recent years, Russo pointed out, has the state's Medicaid program covered the costs of birth-control counseling, devices and drugs—and the cost of abortions.

The information director for Planned Parenthood in New York City, Robin Elliott, agreed with Russo that the most evident reason for the reduction in welfare family size has been a greater dissemination of information.

"Social workers are talking more about it. Public health services are telling people more about it," said Elliott.

"We've conducted a study that shows a greater decline in births through the 1960s for lower-income groups," he continued. "And I think it's simply because they've always had a greater number of unwanted births."

Elliott said the study found that the general fertility rate, the yearly number of births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44, was 151.7 in 1960-64 for women below poverty level. In the second half of the decade, the rate dropped to 121.6. At the same time, the rate for the general population decreased from 109.6 to 87.1.

Paul Simmons, executive assistant to state Social Services Commissioner Abe Lavine, said the state had recorded similarly dramatic statistics for welfare recipients.

In 1961 the department registered 171 births per 1,000 monthly cases, he said. By 1969 that number had dropped to 115 and by 1972 to 72.

The state department's statistics show that the average family size fell from 3.80 in April 1969 to 3.57 for the April 1972 March 1973 fiscal year. It dropped to 3.51 during the first quarter of the current fiscal year and to 3.48 for the present quarter, and the department projects a 3.45 average for the next quarter.

Russo said the shrinking size of the welfare family has been noted nationally. It also parallels an accelerating downturn in fertility among the general population.

The average welfare family nationally had 4.0 members in December 1968 and 3.54 in December 1972.

The national fertility rate, which can be defined simply as

Work - And - Training Mandate

KINGSTON All able-bodied welfare recipients available for jobs will again have to report for work referral or training, beginning today, when they pick up their assistance checks, Ulster County Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer announced today.

Statewide, some 52,000 recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children who had been exempted from the regulations during a year of court challenges will again have to report twice monthly to State Employment Service offices. They rejoin about 36,000 Home Relief recipients unaffected by the court decisions.

The work and training mandate for employable public assistance recipients was a major part of Gov. Rockefeller's 1971 welfare reform program. It was upheld June 23 by the United States Supreme Court. On Aug. 2, a Federal District Court in Buffalo refused to grant an order to restrain the state from reimplementing the work referral requirement in AFDC cases, pending completion of a detailed comparison of the State's work rules and Federal statutes, as ordered by the Supreme Court.

Since July 1, 1971, when the work requirement was implemented, 45,371 persons on welfare were given work experiences; 92,193 others were denied assistance for failure to train, accept or stay at a job for varying periods of time, from a minimum penalty period of 30 days or until they complied.

The work reporting requirement had been severely restricted since October 1972.
